General Plan Amendment Submittal Requirements

Note: Any element of the General Plan can be amended a maximum of four times per year. This means that the City Council cannot hold more than four hearings per year on applications to amend the General Plan for each element. When there are more than four pending applications for General Plan amendments in a year, the hearing date for an application may be delayed until a number of applications can be grouped together. The Planning Commission considers General Plan Amendments after all environmental documentation is complete. The Commission makes a recommendation to the City Council, who makes the final decision.
